Monkey imitation! Recently, it's been at least 10 years since I played regularly in high school and I've started to get back to golfing (thanks to my new boss). After hitting a few balls in the garden, I wanted more! I loaded the car with my wife, 2.5-year-old son and 4-month-old son and headed to our local driving range. I got a bucket of balls and me and my son had a blast hitting the ball. I stopped in the middle of the bucket because I noticed people watching my son hit the ball, he started me getting hit and copying me and actually using his little plastic club to hit a few balls into the range with real force. After hitting the bucket, my sons' poor little plastic club was sitting under pressure to hit a (real golf ball I went out and bought a plastic and metal club set for my son and within minutes bought that luke ..., I cut the real club to my son's size and decided I could cut the real club down to my son's size and make him one to go to the range with daddy. I was surprised at how easy this project was and you wanted to share a 20-minute project that would launch you into SUPER DAD from a super dad! Easy Kids Golf Club! Copyright© 2020 Infospace Holdings, LLC, System1 Company Golfers are allowed to use putters on putting greens, or can golfers use clubs that want to play strokes if the golf ball is on the putting green? Golf rules allow the use of any golf club to play any golf shot. If you want, you can tee off using the driver using a putter and putt. It wouldn't be a very smart way to play golf, but it would be perfectly legal under the rules of golf. The best option for golfers (the only option for golfers) is to use a non-putter club on the putting green. It's not often, but it happens. For example, if a putter breaks down during a round and cannot be replaced, you should putt using something other than a putter. In that situation, many pros prefer to putt with wedges and hit golf balls at the equator with wedge tips (in other words, blow it away). Another scenario you see occasionally (rarely) on the Pro Tour: tough slopes and oddly shaped greens have such a big break of long putts that golfers have to put them in the rough through the fringes or even to make a proper break. In that situation, tour players may choose to use wedges and chips or throw the ball and take much of it out of the equation. And once upon a time, the rules of golf include something called a staimi that requires chipping on the greens. Steymis existed only in match play, allowing one golfer to intentionally put the ball into another player's line and block direct access to the other golfer's hole. In that situation, blocked golfers often chided on the ball to be mediated. (Staimi was eliminated from golf in 1952. A good example of chipping on the putting green happened at the 2002 Ryder Cup and is pictured above. Phil Mickelson faced a hard-break putt and, rather than rolling the ball, decided to skip the ball and take that break out of the equation. So instead of inging in, Mickelson played a chip shot. (Unfortunately, like Mickelson, most of us can't take the perfect divot that can be easily replaced on the putting side.) A lot of us dig up a fair bit of turf and it would do a lot of damage to the greens if we tried chipping off the putting surface. (So, before you try something similar, if you're not a highly skilling player, contact yourself if it could damage the greens.) Just because the rules can't tip off the green doesn't necessarily mean amateurs and recreational golfers should. Another Ryder Cup example of using a club other than a putter on the green: In a match at the 1987 Ryder Cup, Ben Crenshaw beat the putter in anger. He had to play the rest of the game putting in his sandOr 1 iron. Unsurprisingly, he lost the game. Our editors independently recommend research, testing, and the best products and services. One of the first online retailers for golf clubs - in addition to more than 30,000 other golf products. This site often has a 24-hour flash sale with free shipping on orders averaging $100, $99 or more from most golf clubs (with some exclusions). The club's vast inventory is classified by 13 brands, including player types (male, female, child and left-handed golfers), club types (including used and custom clubs and club sets), Callaway, Wilson, PING and Srixon. Sorting and filtering between clubs is easy, and you can use club comparison tools, but you can narrow your selection by size, grip, flex, loft, and more. The description and statistics are clearly spelled out and the site also deals with Q&A's. In-house user reviews provide an overview of product performance as well as star ratings on characteristics such as distance, workability and forgiveness, making it easier for future buyers to gather information. 02 of 02 Popular bricks and mortar sporting goods store Dix Sporting Goods covers a variety of club brands, types and complete sets with the Best Price Guarantee, which it said matches costs with other eligible retailers. You can also arrange a free in-store pickup an hour after purchasing the club online, or arrange a free transfer to your home. In addition to competitive pricing and a robust selection of clubs, their website also offers buying guides to help with subjects including custom golf clubs, how to find the right golf irons, and how to choose a driver or hybrid club. Filter options cover the gamut, from user reviews of star ratings by verified customers to club features, brands, prices, and gender. The site also offers a handful of Dick's exclusive clubs. All products include detailed descriptions, recommendations for clubs that can be compared, and easy access to review/star ratings. For a good price at a new, top club, Dix is hard to beat. 09 Online retailer Reion's 03 offers second-hand clubs, but sometimes buying second-hand clubs can cause anxiety about whether they will deliver on their promises. And that's exactly what Callaway fights for in a certified second-hand online store. Unsurprisingly, the site's inventory focuses on callaway clubs, each offering a certificate of authenticity and a conditional guarantee. You will also receive a 90-day buy-back option and if the price changes within 14 days of purchase, we will refund the amount upon request. They also offer other brands including Cleveland, Cobra, Mizuno, Titleist and TaylorMade. ShoppingIt's a bit limited compared to other sites, but includes filters for gender, hands, price, and details such as lofts and shaft flex. Product information and user reviews/ratings are also robust, and the relevant items section allows for a smart, level view to help you narrow down your club's selection. We also offer Callaway Rewards benefits so you can qualify for free shipping. 04 Golf Galaxy Courtesy of Golf Galaxy, its parent, Dick You may not have a retail footprint for sporting goods, but they more than make up for it with specificity: as its name suggests, stores and online retail sites offer golf for everything, including custom golf clubs, complete sets, drivers, fairway woods, hybrids, irons, wedges and a complete array of putters. You'll also get the highest price guarantee as well as a simple, one-hour pickup (or free shipping). The site offers a bit of selection and buying tips and some expert advice, but what's highlighted here is the club's stats. Each product contains loft, hand, bounce and shaft variables, which are floated by user reviews and Q&A capabilities. Built around four datasets (physical characteristics, swing dynamics, strength and shot trends), the tool has helped create custom-made clubs for more than 10,000 golfers since 2005 and boasts a 95 percent accuracy rating. Start by choosing a club type from all the usual suspects, then work through more than 15 brand options for head, shaft and grip. Keep in the way, however, that this isn't the most customer-friendly online experience for browsing and ratings. It doesn't include product-level user reviews and ratings, and there's little information about parts of your club, but web searches by product name can help flesh out those details when you're not known or need additional insights. 09's 06 Worldwide Golf Shop is the parent brand of several small bricks and mortar shops (more than 80 across 20 states) and has been in the industry for more than 50 years - with one of the most robust stock of club package sets. A complete set offers the convenience of scoring an entire kit (including bags) without fuss by finding each club, and is often cheaper than building your own set. They offer 13 brands of left-handed and right-handed junior, male and female golfers kits with filters in price, shaft flex, shaft material, size and color. Worldwide Golf Shop provides customer service via email or toll-free number instead of persistent chatbots/windows, and at competitive pricesWarranty and 90-day satisfaction policy. Customer reviews/ratings may be lacking compared to other online retailers, but detailed information on each set should be enough to scope out the ideal kit, while comparison shops are available for products recommended on-site. Get free shipping on orders over $99. Founded by 09 of 07 two college students, Golf Avenue began on eBay in 2006 before graduating to one of the largest online golf retailers of second-hand equipment with more than 75,000 clubs in its inventory. PGA pros evaluate each club before it is accepted for sale, each steam-washed, taken from various angles and carefully graded to provide as much transparency as possible. They carry all major brands including Callaway, TaylorMade, Title and Ping and sell clubs in both club type and complete set. Prices vary depending on the overall state of the club, but generally hover about $100 less than retail. You get all the expected filter options including shaft material, brand, player type, loft, flex and price. Better thing, you can also narrow down your search by club criteria: new, very good, good, and fair. Each club contains a manufacturing date and a decently detailed description, while other retail sites have more information as needed. User reviews are from verified customers. The 30-day return policy adds some comfort and shipping is waived for purchases over $150. 08 of 09 This clearinghouse for all PGA Tour-related things offers clubs for golfers of all levels, but professionals with ambitions to reach tour-level play will do well by choosing this online retailer. In addition to breaking clubs down by type, we highlight club browsing by manufacturers such as Cobra, Callaway and Odyssey and recognize that experienced golfers have brand loyalty. The site offers complete sets, sale items and premium second-hand clubs, with filters sorted by color, flex, brand, loft, length and price. A robust product-level user review/rating library helps to read the market out, and all club statistics (from description to technical specifications) are easy to read. There's also a Q&A feature and free standard shipping if you spend $99 or more. Followed by 9 of 9 below. 09 of 09 You can rely on rock bottom golf for all major discounts, from individual clubs to iron groups to entire club sets. This deep cost savings comes in the form of low prices, open boxes, return clubs, second-hand clubs with a 30-day playability guarantee, and sections dedicated to clearance with a 50% price cut. They also offer cash for your old club, but the buy-back price is pretty modest. Browse by club type or brand and filter by brand, flex, loft, price, and terms (new, used, open box). The details are fairly robust and include a variety of flex patterns, grips and loft specifications. The user review library reads considerably less, but it's easy to source that information elsewhere. Easy access to an online golf glossary can help break down some of the golf jargon. All clubs have a 90-day warranty and most ships are free. Free.
